Scott’s Tank Top Badges : Yellow Submarine & Let’s Go For A Curry

Pre-Show Nerves : (Length: 06:19)

Records Played:

General:

A banging tune from American rock singer Andrew W K opens tonight. Scott says he saw him on the NME tour some years ago.

He has on a rainbow tank top with a lime green geometric shirt and a couple of badges, one of which says ‘Let’s Go For A Curry’. The other has a turquoise background, possibly with a yellow submarine...eek, I’m squinting and I cannae quite make it out.

Fan shout outs.

Scott encourages viewers to check out The Lottery Winners’ sea shanty version of Nickleback’s Rockstar.

“Strap yerselves in for a fun one,” he says of the main show.

And he’s off to get ready.

Aftershow : (Length: 41:30)

Location: Scott and Amanda’s living room

Songs Played:

All The Way Home (Spinal Tap)

Breaking The Law (Judas Priest)

Hot Stuff (Donna Summer)

Mrs Vandebilt (Wings)

Misery (Green Day)

Fifteen Years (Levellers)

Tribute (Tenacious D)

Shit Raffle Winner: Lee Raynor & Dave Holdgate

General:

It's been a really cold week, causing Amanda's asthma to flare up, so her and Scott have decided to stay indoors tonight.

Scott has selected songs in the key of A minor for the aftershow.

He does a short burst of Spinal Tap's All The Way Home, then moves on to Judas Priest, Breaking The Law.

Jon Shanks says on the chat that Breaking The Law always reminds him of Beavis and Butt-Head. Scott agrees.

The next song is one Scott covered early in his career: Donna Summer's Hot Stuff. Sophie Watson says it reminds her of the dole queue scene in The Full Monty. All I can think of is when Prince Charles unexpectedly appeared on the news in the late 90s, participating in a recreation of the scene for some charity function, and started thrusting his hips in a mortifyingly embarrassing way. Oh God...and now it's in my head again. Make it stop...please!

108 people are watching at around 13:40 minutes in.

Big clue for next week's guest...Amanda pans the camera round to focus momentarily on a black and white Jeremy Cunningham (Levellers) print.

Time for a Wings song: Mrs Vandebilt.

And on to Green Day, Misery.

Bit of chit chat.

Then, the Levellers' The Girl From Fifteen Years Ago.

Scott and Amanda thank Matt and Ali Caldwell for sending them a Ringo puppet.

The show draws to a close with Scott belting out the awesome Tribute by Tenacious D. However, a somewhat over-enthusiastic jump at the end of said song results in a broken guitar strap.

Scott thanks viewers for watching, says: "In the words of Vinnie Jones, 'it's been emotional'. We'll see you next week. Ta-ra!"
