Shout out to Clegg from Ghosts Of Men for doing Octopus' Garden during his guest slot.

First song is That's Entertainment by The Jam.

Scott says he isn't a massive Weller fan "cuz ee's got the smuggest haircut in rock" : )

Next, a song from 1981. It's Cliff Richard, Wired For Sound.

This week Amanda got sent some flowers by the Doonie Ladies' Magical Circle. This is a Facebook Messenger group, originally set up by Andrea Wright for female Doonifans who met through the Big Neets In to have a safe space for general chit chat, laughs and support.

Scott plays David Bowie's Ashes To Ashes.

Then it's a Counting Crows song from the 1990s, Mrs Potter's Lullaby.

Scott has provisionally booked The Lantern Theatre for a Big Neet Out on 1st October 2021. Tickets are not on sale yet. "God knows what's gonna happen, we'll have to get Amanda a Punch & Judy tent or summat."

Final song, Scott attempts to play "one of the happiest songs on the planet". He begins...promptly drops his guitar pick...can't find it...has to get an emergency one from his wallet. The song is The Divine Comedy's National Express.

He does a cheers to Amanda for her birthday the other day.

A cheesy grin and a wave from Amanda as Scott switches the camera off.
