Special Guest: Gaz Brookfield

On Screen Banner text: Scott Doonican – Live & Lairy Frum Barnsley Rock City

First Appearance of : Grandpa McGlumpher & Buttons

Trivia :

The show celebrates a whole year of Big Neet In and starts with clips from the first episode.

Scott has a party hat.

The Gervais clip has been edited to remove some of the early out of character conversation.

There is a Puppet Parish Council Meeting.

Somebody has sent in Buttons but Scott & Amanda don't know who from!

Scott proposed to Amanda while she was doing merch at Beautiful Days.

Gloria asks if she can dedicate "Festival Heroes" to Gaz Brookfield and his wife Angie.

Frog does the operatic vocals during "Bohemian Rhapsody".

Quotes :

"Which way to the nibbles" (Grandpa)

"That's what you said, you wanted some d'balloons" (Gordon)

"Cider, Cider, Cider, Treasure" (Ringo)

"I do like The Cure, they're better than the Prevention"

"That's a very poor joke" (Gloria)

"That sounds wrong on many levels"

"Jaunty" (Amanda)

"I love your fez"

"Doonicorn" (Amanda)

Scott's Tank Top Badges : Dennis The Menace & Richard Ayode

Pre-Show Nerves : (Length: 08:17)

Records Played:

Common People (William Shatner)

General:

The dulcet warblings of William Shatner rhythmically speaking Pulp's Common People float across the ether this evening.

Scott shows everyone the bright red and yellow striped Gordon socks he's wearing: "It's a miracle!" They were a gift from Doonifan Lin Hulme.

He has on a dark shirt with small pale flowers under his trademark rainbow tank top.

Lockdown Hero awards will be handed out tonight. People have been sending in nominations this week.

Aftershow : (Length: 48:16)

Location: The Pint & Puppet

Songs Played:

Dance Tonight (Paul McCartney)

Flowers In The Window (Travis)

Waiting For An Alibi (Thin Lizzy)

Poison (Alice Cooper)

Cartoon Boyfriend (The Wonder Stuff)

National Express (The Divine Comedy)

Shit Raffle Winner: Jo Freeman, Nick Davies, Jan Wheeler & Ian Parker

General:

DOONICORRRRN!

Sorry, can't resist noting the Doonicorn (Scott wearing a conical party hat) whenever it makes an appearance. There is absolutely no reason to do so other than Doonicorn is a fun word to say. And although to date I've only ever seen Scott wearing a party hat of this kind, really if any Doonicorn is spotted with one I reckon the only right thing would be to point and shout "DOONICORRRN!" as loud as you can.

As Amanda puts the puppets to bed Scott shows viewers a small keg of beer his younger brother dropped off earlier. It's an Abbeydale Brewery 6.6% Black Mass.

Around 300 people were tuned in to the main show at peak tonight.

At 2:45 minutes in to the aftershow there are 120 viewers.

To celebrate one year of Big Neet In fans have sent Scott and Amanda numerous gifts and cards this week. Amanda places some of the cards on The Pint & Puppet bar.

Gordon receives a small silver robot from Lin Hulme which he is very excited about. He asks Scott to wind him up and make him walk across the bar. The robot stops just short of falling off the edge.

140 viewers are tuned in around 6:45.

Picking up his mandolin, Scott decides upon a jolly first song, it's Paul McCartney's Dance Tonight. He thanks Bjorn for introducing him to Paul's later solo music.

152 viewers are tuned in at around 8 minutes.

Scott and Amanda had a bit of a faff this week while trying to sort Pint & Puppet T-shirts. It turned out the ladies' T's weren't available in lime green, so they then had to contact all ladies who'd ordered one to arrange a different option.

The second song is Travis' Flowers In The Window, dedicated to a couple of fans who are currently poorly. Then it's on to Thin Lizzy's Waiting For An Alibi, a song Scott really likes but hasn't played acoustically before.

Amanda takes the mick out of Scott in his "little jaunty hat", prompting him to set the Doonicorn at an even more lopsided angle.

Next up, Scott plays a beautifully stripped back version of Alice Cooper's Poison. He says when he was still a teacher he would stick Alice's School's Out For Summer on full blast as the kids left for the holidays.

Random fact: Scott says he hates clothes shopping and not having to deal with going out to buy clothes has been one of the best things about lockdown.

The Wonder Stuff's Cartoon Boyfriend is played next.

Then Scott says he's going to finish the aftershow with "probably one of the happiest songs ever"...it's National Express by The Divine Comedy. Scott encourages audience participation "join in so loud that you wake yer neighbours up".

At the end of the song Amanda breaks into a fit of giggles as she reads on the chat thread that fan Jenny Fuller has just accidentally knocked her cat off the back of her chair.

Scott goes and sits next to Amanda, hands her the Doonicorn, she puts it on.

Amanda lifts her gin up, suggests they do a Police Squad ending with frozen smiles. As she's holding her smile and hoping for a swift ending, Scott struggles to find the off button :)

N.B. No cats were harmed during this BNI aftershow.
