Special Guest : Robert Kitson

On screen banner: Scott Doonican -Live frum Barnsley Rock City

First Appearance of : Binful of Bottles was new this BNI. It saw the appearance of Boris Johnson in the video.

TRIVIA:

Doonican’s Rider is the only Audio rider that Glastonbury Festival organisers have ever received.

Scott Doonican used to be a teacher and taught his pupils how to play the song about Justin Bieber to his pupils. The life-sized cardboard Justin Bieber was given to the band in 2014. During the lockdown video of The Cockwombling Song seen in this Big Neet In, we saw Bjorn playing a drum kit, another instrument that the audience were unaware he could play.

Richard Kitson's band Lapwing can be found on facebook and has a website Lapwingband.com. His artwork can be viewed at Richard Kitson.co.uk

With the Covid Pandemic occurring, the public are familiar with the Government's Three Part Slogans. During this BNI we saw the Doonicans version;
STAY ALERT. DON'T BE AN ARESHOLE. SAVE LIVES.

QUOTES:

Discussing Kanye West, "you must have heard his terrible version of Bohemian Rhapsody"? Scott thought it "needed more kazoos and more ukulele"

Discussing pubs being opened Scott and Amanda questioned if bingo halls were allowed to open. Amanda then suggested there would be "socially distanced dabbing"

Scott commented that The Gasman Cometh had been videoed during the bands Christmas tour. He said they were hoping to put on some sort of special for Christmas, and concluded "if we carry on like this, it would go out Boxing Day" [Big Neet In #40 was indeed broadcast on December 26th 2020]

Scott's Badges:

Pre-show Nerves: (Length: 11:55)

Records Played:

Dizzy (a collaboration with The Wonder Stuff from Vic Reeves' I Will Cure You album)

General:

An upbeat Scott sings along to Vic Reeves' Dizzy as tonight's pre-show opens.

He says it's his 'happy' song.

The first song on Vic's I Will Cure You album, entitled Big Night Out, is the opening theme to Big Neet In.

Scott's looking fresh in a red shirt and red, lemon, turquoise and green tank top with red edging. Pipe smoking Alan and Fk Boris badges adorn the top right.

"What a bloody week it's been," he sighs.

Fans have been sending best wishes to Amanda's mum who has had a fall. She's still in hospital and is far from well but is "hopefully gonna turn the corner soon". She has a fractured wrist, and an eye test discovered early onset glaucoma which could have caused blindness had it not been treated immediately. She's had laser surgery on her eyes. Nonetheless, Scott plans to throw everything into the show as he believes laughter is the best medicine.

Fan hellos.

Scott thinks anyone who was out protesting in Trafalgar Square earlier should give their heads a bit of a wobble (Thousands of people gathered to protest COVID-19 safety measures). He's got no problem with people's right to protest, but thinks not wearing masks and gathering en masse at this moment in time is just going to make it harder for musicians to "get back to work proper".

Scott says he's a massive fan of Cake and swings the camera round to show viewers various band artworks framed on his music room wall. Among them are Cake, The Beatles, Queen, Rory Gallagher.

After a bit more fan chit chat he leaves to get organised for the main show.

Aftershow: (Length: 28:45)

Location: The campervan

Songs Played:

Take On Me (A-ha)

You Can't Do That (The Beatles)

Jackie Wilson Said (Van Morrison, covered by Dexys Midnight Runners)

Shit Raffle Winner: Georgina Dawson & Mim MacMahon

General:

Scott's knackered after legging it down to the van.

He spots Amanda swigging his beer. She says it's because he didn't get her a drink. He heads to the van's fridge to rectify this. Much clattering is heard. He then returns with a G&T.

Over 100 people are tuned in two minutes into the aftershow.

Danny Doonican messaged Scott earlier to thank him for sending a copy of Leap Of Faith. The album's planned release date was originally 8th October 2020. But as Scott has sent it to a number of people who featured on it and word is getting out about it online, it will now be on sale from Friday on Bandcamp. Hard copy orders have been posted out.

Fans are loving Scott's new song, Binful Of Bottles (An Ode To The Coronavirus Lockdown), which premiered today.

Scott reveals Bjorn is colour-blind.

He says when Van Morrison's Jackie Wilson Said was covered by Dexys Midnight Runners on Top Of The Pops back in the day, producers put a massive picture of darts player Jocky Wilson up :)

Scott hopes he can get back to playing normally soon.

BNI fans have built up a real community over the weeks of lockdown. Scott loves that people have come together in this way.

In closing, Scott and Amanda sit next to each other, raise their glasses.

Scott: "Cheers and goodnight. God bless."
