The Ornithologist Waltz is started on the Omnichord but abandoned mid way in favour of the uke.

Quotes :

"A big piece of VT or a big pile of VT?"

"Let me get me catchphrase in lad" (Percy to Scott)

"It is Pamplemousse juice" (Marceaux)

"It's Amanda's Birthday weekend and we are drinking" (Scott) "Meths" (interjected by Amanda off screen)

"You're Ringo and you've been playing Bingo?"

"I got my belly out then!" (Ringo)

"It's really boring watching springs" (Wallace)

"Focusing on the cocks" (Wallace)

"It's shitty brown!" (Wallace)

"We're not even enjoying the show now!"

"Messy garage Lady, we love her!" (Fairbanks)

"I don't think I've ever kissed a Yeti before"

Scott's Tank Top Badges : Snoopy & Muppets

Pre-show – (Length: 02:46)

Records Played: None

General:

Scott is amazed it's show number 90.

Tonight's tank top is his older pale rainbow one over a purple psychedelic shirt with eyes, with an irregularly shaped Muppets badge and a Snoopy one.

"For those of you who've never watched a Big Neet In before, we start on YouTube at 8 o'clock, sharpish."

As he's not done one of these since New Year's Eve he thinks it'll be quite weird.

Last night he met up with his brother Lewy so Lewy could learn the base parts for the Doonicans' upcoming Bearded Theory set (depping for Dave Doonican). Dalgas will also join them on stage at the festival, making them a six-piece for the occasion.

"Have a fun night you crazy kids and we'll see you in a bit," he says before signing off.

Aftershow – (Length: 45:38)

Location: The Pint & Puppet

Songs Played:

Kids In America (Kim Wilde)

When Love Runs Out Of Time (Levellers)

Born To Run (Bruce Springsteen)

May You Never (John Martyn)

Closer To Fine (Indigo Girls)

What A Wonderful World (Louis Armstrong)

Shit Raffle/Golden Ticket Winner: Chris Freeman and Beth Postill

General:

"It's been a while 'ant it," chuckles Scott as him and Amanda get ready for the aftershow in The Pint & Puppet.

First and foremost, the puppets who took part in the main show are put back in their places and Scott thanks viewers for tuning in.

We are told 50 people chipped in with donations for Amanda's birthday, which is on Monday, and are shown two delightful cushions, made by Margaret Kirk, featuring various Big Neet In related imagery.

30 people are watching at around 2 minutes in.

"We peaked around about 100 tonight didn't we, so that was decent, considering that there's no pandemic on or owt and people 'av got lives to lead and stuff," says Scott of Big Neet In 90's viewing figures, before working up a strum on his guitar and launching into Kids In America.

Amanda joins in the chorus. He pays her a compliment as the song ends. "Top backing vocals."

"No not really, I couldn't help thinking about that idea I had before about getting the skids in a campervan," she replies.

After watching recent news Scott concludes the world's 'a bit bugged at the minute'. It makes him think of When Love Runs Out Of Time, a Leveller's song, written by Simon Friend, which he then plays.

Next up is Born To Run (Bruce Springsteen), dedicated to Dave Doonican. A conversation ensues about how Bruce is a bit Marmite. Scott's Uncle Bob was a big fan who used to send him cassettes of Bruce's albums, which Scott taped over due to not being too bothered about him. He's a bigger fan now though.

May You Never by John Martyn is next; a song Scott strums with his fingers rather than his usual pick.

Amanda thanks Scott's sister Sarah for giving her new puppet, Super Haggis, for her birthday. Tonight's Big Neet In was the first appearance of Super Haggis, who we learned is Gordon McGlumpher's orange alter ego who has started to materialise if he goes on an Irn-Bru bender.

The penultimate song is Indigo Girls' Closer To Finel, followed by Louis Armstrong's What A Wonderful World.

As the new Doonicans, Mojo, Dave and JR, were all interviewed on tonight's main show, Scott explains that Alan wasn't featured as he's busy preparing to move house.

Scott and Amanda are going to London next week to see ABBA Voyage for a second time (another birthday present) and The Mind Mangler. They then need to return home before heading to Norfolk for the Doonicruise.

The band have just been announced for Trowbridge Festival; described by Scott as being a small one with a big heart and great names, and one which will celebrate its 50th anniversary this summer.

"God bless and goodnight," says Scott as both he and Amanda wave to the camera.
